JACK CRAWFORD, "POET SCOUT," DIES

Pneumonia Is Fatal to Man Who Won Fame as a Frontiersman.

FOUGHT AGAINST INDIANS

News of Death of Buffalo Bill, His Early Teacher, Depressed Him.

NEW YORK, March 1 .- Capt. Jack Crawford, who succeeded Col. William F. Cody as Chief of Scouts of the United States army, died yesterday at his home, 7745 Thrall avenue, Woodhaven, Queens.

Pnuemonia caused his death, his remarkable constitution postponing the inevitable for weeks after physiclans had passed sentence upon him As he lay in bed ill from a com plication of diseases he got the news that Colonel Cody with whom he had ridden in many a wild charge against the Sloux, had gone over the great divide. It depressed him. "So Bill Cody has gone?" said Capt. Jack. "I guess they will be sounding taps over me prettey soon Well, when we meet Tall Bull and that tough old codger Sitting Bull on the other side and stick up our hands paim forward and say, "How, Kola!" there will be a lot to talk about. And so to Capt, Jack, death was merely the last great adventure. He would have liked to stay longer in this world, but almost all of the great figures of the Old West, the men with whom he had ridden and fought Custer, Crook Merritt, Sheridan, Cody—are in the other world, and firm believer as he was in the future life, Jack Crawford looked forward with keen anticipation to meeting

One Of A Fearless Company

He was one of the fearless company who pushed the frontier ever west ward, but like Buffalo Bill was ever reticient in the matters of his own exploits. He much preferred to talk religion-Capt. Jack was extremely blous-or to recite poetry-he had written much himself in earning the title, 'the Poet Scout''—than to recall the old days when he led the dusty files of United States cavalrymen into sagebrush strongholds of the hostiles. But the records have preserved the achievements of the old scout permanently, one may hope.

He was born in Ireland in County
Donegal on March 4, 1847, and came to the United States when he was a mere slip of a boy. Then the civil war began and John Wallace Crawford, only sixteen years of age, ran away from home to enlist. The re-cruiting officers turned him down time after time, but he finally blarneyed the recruiting officer of the Forty-eighth Pennsylvania Volunteers and in hard service received wounds that almost finished him. As he lay in a hospital in West Philadelphia the Sisters of Charity taught him to read and write.

He Loved Adventure.

Recovered from his wounds he went West, impelled by love of adventure; presented himself before General Crook, who was then, in 1870, always busy with troublesome Indians, and got an appointment under Crook as cout. Buffalo Bill was Crook's chief of scouts and under Cody, Crawford rode and fought many a year. Cody retired from the scout service in 1876 and Captain Jack got his place as scout chief. He served in numerous campaigns against the Sioux and the Apaches, and knew, as many another Indian fighter of that period knew, what it was to take the dust of the Custer had a great affection for Captain Jack and ranked him as one of the nerviest, most resourceful trailers that ever went after bad ndians. He quit the scout service in 1886, mined and ranched in New Mexico for ten years and then got the Klondike fever. Two winters in Alaska failed to pan out, and Captain Jack came back to the States. In the subsequent years he took up lecturing, which, with the sale of his poems and contributions to the magazines, earned him his living. At one time he was a special agent of the Department of Among his writings were "The Poet Scout, a Book of Song and Story,' 1885; "Campfire Sparks," 1888; "Tat." a drama in three acts, 1900. "Fonda," a drama in three acts, and "Colonel Bob," a drama, 1909; "Private Brown," "Whar the Hand o' God Is Seen," and other poems, 1911; more than 100 short stories and a dozen songs set to mu-sic and published.

Funeral Tomorrow Night.

Captain Crawford is survived by his widow, Mrs. Maria Crawford, who is in San Marcell, N. M.; three children, Mrs. Eva Reckhart, of El Paso, Tex.; Harry W. Crawford, of Clovis, N. M., of which town he was formerly mayor, and Miss May Craw-ford, of San Marciel; two brothers, Austin Crawford, of San Marciel, and William Crawford, of Philadelphia, and two sisters, Mrs. John Boyson. of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Elizabeth Nattress, of San Marciel. The funeral will be held tomorrow night at & o'clock in the Nostrand Avenue Methodist Church, in Brook-yn. The Rev. H. B. Munson will officiate. Services also will be held by the Elks and the G. A. R. post to which Captain Crawford belonged, Interment will be in the national come-tery at Cypress Hills Saturday morn-

GOMMECOURT IS TAKEN

British Continue to Push on in North France, Capturing Trenches.

LONDON, March 1 .- British troops are only a mile from Bapaume, In-fantry forces, pressing after the retreating Germans, have set foot on the Bapaume ridge. They can see now for the first time the town that has been their goal ever since the Somme offensive opened eight months ago to-mile northeast of Gommecourt. The Germans have given up the village of Thilloy, almost exactly a mile southwest of Bapaume, and more important still, atop the ridge of which Bapaume is the central point. It was on this ridge that it was thought the Germans might stand.

Trench System Captured.

Tonight's official report says that the trench system adjoining" Thilloy has fallen into British hands. This may mean the wonderfully strong and intricate section of the old Garman fourth line just beyond Thilloy, be tween it and Bapaume. If so all that remains is the Bapaume line itself, which is comparatively new.

Nor are these the only successes announced for the British today. Gommecourt, nearly five miles north of the Ancre, along a mighty fortres-before which thousands of British troops laid down their lives in vain efforts to storm it, has been given up almost without resistance. Beyond and a little southeast of Gommecourt the straggling village of Pulseux-aux-Mont has been taken. Mont has been taken.

To strengthen their hold on these positions the British have pushed forward near by. Their line is now more than a half mile northeast of Gommecourt, progressing in regions where hitherto all attacks had been repell-

Trench systems adjoining Pulseux-au-Mont have failen also to the British, and patrols are still creeping-ahead, as close behind the Germans as is safe.

An attack has been made on the German lines at the point where ap-parently the retirement pivots, Brit-ish troops attacked and captured this morning part of a German trench northeast of Sailly-Saillisel, near the

For the first time the German war office breaks its silence concerning the Ancre retirement, only to imply that everything is going as the gen-

"In the Ancre section infantry en-gagements in front of our positions took the course desired by the com-mand," it says.

Big Retreat Likely.

Viewed in combination with the continuing retirement, this statement increases the wonderment as to where reached here that Sir A. F. Yarrow, it will stop. Besides the strong posover, the more vague chance that the hoped-for retreat to the Arras-Cambrai line is on at last is widely dis-

That entente leaders believe there are great possibilities in the situation is evidenced by the fact that a con-ference of the highest British and French commanders of government and army was held at Calais on Monupon the German retirement on the incre and how the allies might best take advantage of it. Great Britain sent to the conference
